

THE COPE EXPERIENCE

Picture, if you will, 10 people seriously immersed in the difficult task of fitting their teetering, clinging bodies on a two foot square wooden platform. Picture then, one by one, falling backward from a five foot high platform into the waiting arms of their "Team". These two "low course" events are a small part of what happens in a COPE course experience...8, 10 or 20 hours that will change your life. "Learning to Cope" will turn a diverse group of strangers into a close-knit, trusting team, able to support each other as they face their final COPE challenges - to negotiate a series of elements 30 - 50 feet above the ground.

COPE

A Boy Scouts of America developed program, is an educational process based on structured activities which use challenging events to identify individual and group intrapersonal strengths and weaknesses, and from this awareness promote positive personal growth. Some of the skills developed include self-confidence, trust, problem solving, conflict resolution, cooperation, competition, leadership, and followership. These skills will be emphasized during exciting, fun-filled adventure activities in an outdoor environment to create an important transfer of learning to the individual's daily work and social life. These challenge events allow them to break through their own preconceived limitations and achieve more than they would have thought possible.
